

International Council of Human Duties

The Trieste Declaration of Human Duties

A Code of Ethics of Shared Responsibilities

University of Trieste
Italy

Introduction

rucial problems concerning humankind at the dawn of the 21st century urge the adoption of a different way of thinking and a different value system.

The change must be as revolutionary as that which emerged after the Middle Ages. The new way of thinking must be centered on humans as an integral part of our planet, whose actions affect all living things. It is our plan to present and discuss these ideas through conferences, workshops and lectures, and in particular to support women's networks and other organizations, active in the spirit of this Declaration. Furthermore, we will seek the participation of the younger generations, which represent our greatest hope for improving the quality of life on earth.

Preamble

hereas the Declaration of Human Rights represents one of the great advances of the twentieth century, it fails to address Human Duties and Responsibilities as necessary counterparts of these Rights. Recognition of and respect for human rights demand the acceptance of specific duties, in order to assure an adequate quality of life for all people and the persistence of a sustainable environment for future generations. We, founding members of the International Council of Human Duties, consider a binding responsibility for ourselves, not only as human beings, but especially as scientists and educators, to carefully and explicitly carry out these duties to the best of our ability, even if their enactment may run counter to established policies generated by traditional sources of power and influence. We herewith invite all people concerned with these issues to join us in our efforts, as expressed in the following twelve points.

The Trieste Declaration of Human Duties

A Code of Ethics of Shared Responsibilities

IT IS THE DUTY OF EVERY HUMAN BEING TO:

- 1 respect human dignity as well as ethnic, cultural and religious diversity.
- 2 work against racial injustice and all discrimination of women, and the abuse and exploitation of children.
- 3 work for improvement in the quality of life of aged and disabled persons.
- 4 respect human life and condemn the sale of human beings or parts of the living human body.
- 5 support efforts to improve the life of people suffering from hunger, misery, disease or unemployment.
- 6 promote effective voluntary family planning in order to regulate world population growth.
- 7 support actions for an equitable distribution of world resources.
- 8 avoid energy waste and work for reduction of the use of fossil fuels. Promote the use of inexhaustible energy sources, representing a minimum of environmental and health risks.
- 9 protect nature from pollution and abuse, promote conservation of natural resources and the restoration of degraded environments.
- 10 respect and preserve the genetic diversity of living organisms and promote constant scrutiny of the application of genetic technologies.
- 11 promote improvement of urban and rural regions and support endeavours to eliminate the causes of environmental destruction and impoverishment which can lead to massive migrations of people and overpopulation in urban areas.
- 12 work for maintenance of world peace, condemn war, terrorism and all other hostile activities by calling for decreased military spending in all countries and restriction of the proliferation and dissemination of arms, in particular, weapons of mass destruction.
